

I am concerned about the possibility of Low Power FM (LPFM) being allowed to take priority over existing translator service.

My family and I have been listening to a radio station that is broadcast to our city via a translator.

The station is K-LOVE and it is a radio station that provides positive music to listen to and I don't have to worry about what is said by the DJs or that the lyrics of the songs filling our heads with questionable topics.

The station brings joy to my life, many times I have been going through a difficult time and a song will come on KLOVE and it will lift me up and give me hope. There are so many radio stations out in our city that would not do that. It would be very sad to see KLOVE displaced from our city's radio waves because there should be an option when the world is sending so many negative images at our families.
